A very warm WELCOME to all who are worshipping with us today -- especially if you are visiting Napier or at the Cathedral for the first time.

Today, at the 10am service, we are continuing to experiment with a new way of coming up for communion.

Being aware of those who have difficulty using the stairs to come up for communion, and being aware that most weeks we serve some people separately in the congregation, and wanting to have a sense of all gathering together, we would like to trial a new way.

We will gather along the bottom of the chancel steps - come up the centre aisle and fill in from the far side - by the eagle lectern on the right and the pulpit on the left. Standing is recommended but if you wish to kneel on the bottom step you may. Communion will be served starting at the lectern/ pulpit and moving to the middle. Please leave via the side aisles.

This is very much an experiment which we will try for 8 weeks and then we will seek feedback on whether we feel this is a good idea. Please reserve your judgement for at least a couple of weeks as it will feel awkward to begin with. But be assured we will listen to the feedback as this may or may not work well.

Please be sure to stand close to the curve of the steps.

TODAY ...

We welcome the Rev'd Dr Helen-Ann Hartley as our guest preacher at the 10.00 am Cathedral Choral Eucharist. Rev'd Dr Helen-Ann, who is the Dean of St John's Theological College in Auckland, emigrated from the UK to NZ in January.

Bishop John Bluck's new book charting the 200-year Anglican bi-cultural journey in New Zealand has been launched.

"Wai Karekare - Trouble Waters" was briefly aired in Fiji at the General Synod, but has now been sent out into the world with due ceremony at this month's meeting of Te Kotahitanga.

The 80-page book is in easy-to-read short sections held together by the central image of a braided river linking milestone stories and photographs of Maori and Pakeha. Bishop Bluck describes the history of that bicultural relationship in a succinct phrase: "mostly separate, sometimes together, rarely easily, often in collision."

The book was commissioned by the General Synod Standing Committee as a resource to help mark the church's bicentenary in 2014. Available here soon!

ORGAN REBUILD PROGRESS

A team of four workers from the South Island Organ Company have spent the past two weeks on site at the Cathedral, working on existing parts of the organ.

REGISTER OF HELPING AGENCIES

The parish church has traditionally been a common point of call when either parishioners or strangers are in crisis. Sometimes that need can be met on the spot. However, more specialist help is often required.

Over the past few months the four inner city co operating churches have worked together to compile a list of community agencies that can be contacted to assist in times of need. There will soon be a register in each of the four inner city parishes, the Cathedral, Trinity Methodist, St Paul's Presbyterian and St Patrick's Catholic Church. This information will be available to those needing help in offering assistance. The list covers agencies involved with counselling, budgeting, health issues, food parcels, furniture, accommodation, advocacy and so on. There are names, addresses, phone numbers and a description of the help offered.

Of course there are gaps, for example, emergency accommodation for men. As an inner city collection of parishes we want to be aware of various social needs in our community and hopeful that we might be able to go some way in helping meet them. The Register is simply a starting point and can be developed and refined as needs arise.

*Napier Foodbank is currently short of canned fish, pasta sauce, flour, toilet paper, milk powder, and spreads such as jam and honey.
Thanks for your generosity.*
